

40 million Americans– including 1 in 6 children—are struggling with hunger in our country.

Hunger is often not a problem of food scarcity, but rather one of logistics. To address this challenge, Food for Good (FFG) works with non-profit partners to identify and implement cost-effective and efficient solutions to reach those in need. FFG is the signature nutrition operation of the PepsiCo Foundation and critical to its mission of helping alleviate hunger around the world.

Distribution Resources

Through PepsiCo's scale and relationships, FFG can source trucks and other equipment at a lower cost – and then pass those discounts along to partners.

FFG leverages PepsiCo's distribution expertise to optimize delivery routes for partners, which cuts down on travel time and expenses.

Food Solutions

FFG can source unique food products for partners and help deliver fresh and shelf-stable meals to hard-to-reach areas, like rural communities and food deserts.

FFG provides backpack bundles for students, so they have food to take home when school is closed – a time when kids are most likely to experience hunger.

Technology Solutions

FFG offers food delivery and storage solutions for partners, including a temperature-controlled "cold box" that makes transporting perishable food easier and more environmentally friendly.

Additional offerings include customized software that allows partners to streamline and enhance government reporting and customize orders.

Natural Disaster Relief

FFG provides support during times of natural disaster, partnering with the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and other relief organizations to deliver meals and water to shelters and communities in impacted areas.
